LEWIS COUNTY, in this State, shows up well in the census in the way of increas in population. In 1870 she had 10,175 inhabitants, while in 1880 she has 13,475, or within a fraction of 33 per cent of an in-crease. This, for a county that until lately has been shut out from the world for want of a railroad, is a very creditable showing indeed. Her population in 1876, was estimated by the special Senate committee's report to the West Virginia Legislature at 12,571, on the basis of her tithables, which amounted to 3,404. So that the bulk of her increase in population, since 1870 probably occurred in the first half of the decade, and is not attributable, save to small extent, to her greater accessibility through the new railroad. To the Greenbackers of Marion County

We find in last Friday's issue of the Fairmont Index the following paragraph The Greenbackers hold their district conventions on Saturday, the 10th, to appoint delegates to the county convention, which will be held in the court house, in this place, on the 17th. The convention for this district will be held at Barrack-

This paragraph indicates that our Green back friends in Marion intend to put themselves in the field this year as a sepa rate political organization. They must have, of course, some reason for doing so, Their organization had its origin in a supposed popular demand for "more mor ess misery," and now it is worth while to inquire what reasons exist for the continuance of this demand, if indeed there is any such demand at this time.

The era of debt has largely passed away since this cry of "more money and less misery" was first heard in the days following the panic. Many people are still in debt, as a matter of course, and always will be. Debt is the normal condition o a large number of people. But the era of debt growing out of the war, and of the flush days succeeding the war, has very largely passed away. Through payment through compromise and through bank ruptcy, the slate has been largely sponged off. The process of settlement has been painful enough. It was hard to pay for land bought at $50 and $75 per acre on a basis of values that reduced it to one half this price. Land found its level with everything else-with iron and cotton goods, and with the wages paid to all kinds of labor. Everything came down trary, we should to-day be heavy importtogether in the general crash. Everybody had to walk up to the Captain's office and settle.

This was no new experience. Thurman said in the United States Senate, in the second year after the late panic, commencing with the one of 1819, and that they all had a common originviz-over-trading, which means an illegitimate expansion of credit, brought on by a reckless departure from the good old principle of "pay as you go."

everybody else, were drawn into the general craze to make money out of credit. They bought land that they did not need, borrowed money to buy cattle and sheep, practiced little or no economy, built expensive houses and bought expensive furwhich they went into debt, and, in many instances, executed mortgages on their

The crash came, as come it must, and caught them wholly unprepared for the consequences. A general settlement of history have we had so great an abundaccounts was demanded, and but the few est number of people were prepared to re by everybody, while lands, houses, furni ture, &c., were wanted by nobody. The market was gorged with everything to sell and nobody was willing to buy. This was what was the matter. Every debtor wanted money, and an amount of money was wanted equal in the aggregate to th whole matured debt of the country. Of course the money was not forthcoming. Those who had it held on to it, because

This being the situation when the panic came it was not strange that the debtors of the country lent a ready ear to the cry of "more money and less misery." They did not want to sacrifice their property. Of course not. Who does? Neither did they want to see it depreciated and dull of sale. They therefore believed the demagoge cry that was heard all over the land, that more paper money was all that was you a good night's rest. It is the best needed, and that more money would soon cough medicine in the market. Price 25c.

stop the depreciation in values and set everything to spinning again.

Considering the amount of individual New York Bulletto of Saturday indebtedness throughout the country, it More or less caution is eems strange that Greenbackism did in the movements of both buyers and sei not wholly occupy the land. Sick peo- lers, and this tends to preserve a compara ple are proverbially credulous, and ready tively even balance on the general market-to fall in with all sorts of experimental Somewhat more wool is wanted, but the nostrums. People who are financially

We are now well started once more in the race for general prosperity. All the conditions are favorable. Our exports are greater than our imports. Farmers have been getting good prices for all they raised owing to this great foreign demand, while at the same time they have been getting very much that they needed to buy at very low prices. No class of men have been more benefitted by the resumption o specie payments than farmers. The figures show that last year we sent abroad agricultural products to the extent of $543,-691,174. They also show that this immense product (as also that of the two years before) was produced at a less cost than for many years previous. Hence no class of men in the country ought to be more unwilling to change the situation, as it exists to-day, than farmers. Of all citiens they should be the first to say, Let well enough alone.

And yet, strange to say, the Greenback party in West Virginia makes its chief appeal to farmers, and the strength of the party in the State, so far as it has any strength, is among the farmers. The farmers of Marion county are now preparing to organize for the campaign. They are oming into the field just as they did two years ago, apparently unmindful of the fact that since that time the thing that was pronounced to be absurd and impossible, viz., the resumption of specie payments, has actually occurred.

Now what do the Greenback farmers of Marion county propose to do? They certainly cannot say that we have not an abundance—yea, a superabundance—ef money. Never in the history of the country was there so large a per R. A. McCABE & CO., Proprietors, capita of money. The total] aggregate my22 WHEELING, W. VA. of paper and specie is $1,111,150,651. And this amount is increasing every day by the coinage of specie. Silver alone is accumu lating at the rate of two millions per month. There is between forty and fifty millions of it lying unused in the vaults of the government to-day. Our production of specie last year, from the mines, was $79,711,990, and in addition to this we imported an immense amount of foreign coin, all of which has remained with us. The net balance of trade in our favor was $264,661,666. The year before it was over 257 millions. When the panic of 1873 broke out the balance was running steadily against us. That year alone it was $119,656,288. We imported that year $60,-000,000 worth of iron and steel, and $159,

464,248 of textile goods. How changed is the situation to-day? We are not only exporting grain, pork, petroleum, tobacco and cotton, but manufactured goods. We are not only holding our own markets against the world, but seeking markets outside of the United States. This result we owe to the wise financial policy of the Republican party. The wild theories of Greenbackism would ers, as far as we had credit to buy foreign goods. A vitiated currency always-make a market to sell in, never to buy in. This is universal history. Every bushel of wheat would have cost every farmer more money to raise and transport, and that he had seen several of them in his margin of profit would consequently have been less. American wheat, corn, etc., must be sold in competition with the breadstuffs of the world, at the going price in real money, no odds how it cost in vitiated money to raise it. Hence, as we have said, the American farmer is The farmers of the country, along with the last citizen of the Republic who should

Wall Street And The Crops

NEW YORK, July 10.-Stock exchange speculators devoted their spare time to discussing "rust," the "chinch bug," the "grasshopper," the "army worm," and other pests which, according to one class of speculators, have combined to ravage the territory through which the Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago & North-western roads run. Impartial advices are to the effect that the damage to the crops in the Northwest is localized, and that (1) of their apprehensions in regard to safety, and (2) because they did not want to buy anything on a falling market.

This being the situation when the panic was being a safety, and (2) because they did not want to buy anything on a falling market.

The only by anxious form to assure holders that it wonder is that there was not a rush en would be good policy to commence hardnasse into the party of "more money and ening on values, and advances are asked masse into the party of "more money and less misery." It must always be told to the credit of the intelligence of the American people that they withstood this temptation in such large numbers. They listened to the voice of reason and to the lessons of history, and ascertained that a panic could not be stopped or cured that way, just as a deep seated disease can not becured by trising with it by the use of patent nostrums.

We are now nearly seven years away from the panic, and slowly we have been emerging from its effects. Through economy and industry we have largely reversed the general status of the country as it existed in 1873. To begin with, we are a creditor instead of a debtor nation. No money worth speaking of goes abroad to day to pay interest on a vast foreign debt. The balance of trade is largely in our favor. Next, individual debtors have settled with individual creditors, and thousands and tens of thousands of people are free men who were in bondage a few years ago. The country is immensely richer in the aggregate, and all classes of people have enjoyed the benefits of the great crops that have been raised and sold abroad.

We are now well started once more in We less misery." It must always be told to with some hesitation. Indeed, with the
